SAP

SAP is used as an enterprise resource planning (ERP) system at the Jade University.

SAP in university administration

The Jade University joined the Lower Saxony University Competence Center for SAP (CCC Hannover) in 2009: The tasks of an SAP CCC include a qualified technical and technical support concept (support desk) for the SAP applications used, internal marketing and information management, and contract administration and the coordination of development applications to SAP AG or the German-speaking SAP user group (DSAG).

SAP in Research and Teaching

In the area of research and teaching, the Jade University participates in the University Alliances SAP program (UCC Magdeburg): Education is the key to innovation and social development. That is why SAP has supported educational projects for many years. The company uses its expertise in science and technology to make an effective contribution to society. With its University Alliances (UA) program, SAP promotes practical and future-oriented training by giving teachers and students worldwide access to the latest SAP technologies. The program is aimed at universities and vocational schools that want to actively integrate SAP software into teaching.
